Heaviest Late April Snow Fall on Record

Today's Storm of "Beautiful"

The heaviest late April snow which has ever fallen in Illinois, according to official records of government observers, occurred in Dixon and Lee county today, when from 7 a. m. until noon a little over five inches of the so-called "beautiful" made trees and bushes things of beauty and streets and sidewalks abominations.

The snow, wet and heavy, did not drip, and melted almost as fast as it fell on sidewalks and pavements, but on lawns, field and dirt roads it did not disappear so quickly.

Opinions vary as to its benefits or demerits. Some claim it will give the farmers greatly in their spring work, others claim it will give the soil the moisture it needs. Take your choice. But undoubtedly the merchants of Dixon "have a kick coming." With stocks loaded up with spring goods which they have not been able to move as they should have been moved in the spring, they had counted on today as a big trade day.

GENERAL WEATHER REPORT
Chicago, April 17—(AP)—Snow came back to the middlewest today and Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois all reported local snow storms. The heaviest late season snow ever reported in Illinois.

Many localities reported rainfall and the weather bureau forecast precipitation over much of the central and northwest in the next 36 hours. Dixon, Illinois held the snowfall record today with five inches, the heaviest late season snow ever reported in Illinois.

Minnesota farmers welcomed the snow and rain in the southern part of the state which remedied a scarcity of moisture and came long enough after seeding operations to be beneficial. The entire midwest found temperatures low today with cloudy weather likely to continue over the week end.

Jury Disagrees Over Obscenity of Drama
Los Angeles, Calif., April 17—(AP)—The legal status of "Desire Under the Elms" today remains unchanged after more than a week's run in municipal court here. The jury disagreed and was discharged early this morning after listening to evidence presented by the play's critics and witnesses a court room reproduction of Eugene O'Neill's drama on New England life. It was charged presentation was obscene.

The jurors, nine women and three men, said they stood 3 to 4 for conviction. They had deliberated since late yesterday afternoon. The case was set for retrial April 22.

Critics of the play attempted to prove it is "lewd, obscene and Moral corrupting." The 25 actors and actresses in the cast maintained that it was more in the nature of a moral lesson in which they were supported by Mrs. Mabel Wind Castle, a club woman, and others.

One Killed, One Hurt on Wisconsin Crossing
Waukegan, Ill., April 17—(AP)—Lawrence Witcock, 32, of Kenosha, Wis., was killed and his unidentified woman companion seriously injured when a train hit their automobile, nine miles northwest of here today.

The woman, believed to be suffering from a fractured skull, and internal injuries was brought to a Waukegan hospital. Cards she carried bore the name Mrs. J. C. Reichelt, Kenosha.

The automobile was struck by a southbound freight train and thrown into the path of a northbound fast mail train which completed the demolition.

Thompson's Majority in Primary Was 356
A typographical error was made in recording the total official vote for County Treasurer, reported in Friday evening's Telegraph, which error robbed Dorrance Thompson, successful candidate, of 399 votes. Mr. Thompson's total in the county was 3660, instead of 3360, as reported, giving him a majority over Fred Richardson of 356.

Costly Home

New York, April 17—(AP)—Preparations for re-entering high school are being made by Mrs. Frances Heman Browning between her honeymoon shopping tours in Fifth avenue to buy gowns and other fineries which are being lavished upon her by her "Cinderella Man," who is a wealthy real estate broker of 51 years. Former girl school mates in the Textile High, clustered about the school girl bride in awesome groups, admiring her finery, when she drove there in Browning's azure automobile and arranged for her transfer to the Hamilton High at Cold Spring, N. Y., near the ten room honeymoon house leased by Browning. Attention of the boy students, centered on the expensive automobile and the liveried footman. To both boys and girls it was the Cinderella legend come true.

The transfer arranged, the 15 year old bride drove to Fifth Avenue stores, but made no purchases. Then she went to a small exclusive shop in 46th Street where she bought an afternoon dress an evening gown and an evening cape.

When Mrs. Browning was at a hotel for luncheon, Mr. Browning was having a ham sandwich, a piece of pie and a cup of coffee at the counsel table in the Municipal Court, where he was interested in a case brought by one of his realty companies. He did not go out to lunch because of the crowds outside the court room.

SWISSVILLE HOME
DAMAGED BY FIRE
THURS. AFTERNOONTenants of Mrs. Wood
Residence Suffered
Considerable Loss

The residence property at 421 Third avenue, Swissville, owned by Mrs. W. A. Wood, who is now in Mobile, Ala., and who is preparing to leave that city to make her future home in Dixon, was badly damaged by fire Friday afternoon, and E. H. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Campbell, residents in the house, suffered heavy losses, also.

The household effects of Mr. Anderson were totally destroyed, with but a small amount of insurance and Mr. and Mrs. Campbell suffered about $600 loss, having no insurance on their effects. Heroic work on the part of employees at the Borden condenser resulted in the saving of a great deal of the household goods.

Started from Chimney.
The fire, which is believed to have started from a spark from the chimney, was discovered a few minutes after 3 o'clock and the strong west wind fanned the small flame which soon enveloped the entire roof. Superintendent Frank J. Cahill of the Borden condenser sent several men with hose to the scene and the fire department was summoned. Chief Thomas Coffey and volunteer firemen went to the scene with chemicals and hose, but the water pressure was insufficient to combat the flames.

The roof burned away in a short time and the flames spread to the second floor. The city street flusher was hurried to the scene and this was used very effectively until the blaze was extinguished. A hose lead from one of the Borden company's fire plugs was attached to the flusher and the pumper engine gave sufficient pressure to combat the flames and confined the fire to the second floor.

A large part of the household effects were removed by the Borden employees and these were later hauled away in trucks. The fire attracted a large crowd, the house being located a block north of the Lincoln Highway, and the flames being visible for many blocks.

Subject Discussion
Birmingham, Ala., April 17—(AP)—Nearing the end of its quadrennial session, the International Council of Religious Education turned its entire attention today to the discussion of problems of youth. Nationally known religious leaders led the discussion.

While the council discussed the problems, hundreds of young persons from all sections of the nation and other countries gathered in separate meetings, styled a "congress of youth."

The general religious education program of the 36 denominations federated in the council centers about the education of children.

Council leaders consider the concluding sessions of the convention as of great importance to protest antisms.

Kellogg's Suggestions Submitted to Chile-Peru
Washington, April 17—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg, as mediator in the Tacna-Arica dispute, has made alternative suggestions to Chile and Peru for a neutralization of the two provinces or for their transfer "to a South American state not a party to these negotiations" upon equitable compensation.

There was no doubt on the part of the state department officials that the "South American state not a party to these negotiations," was Bolivia.

Referring to unofficial reports that Chile had rejected the proposal, Secretary Kellogg would say only that neither Chile nor Peru had as yet refused it.

KLAN IS ISSUE
IN CITY POLLS
AT HERRIN TUES.K. K. K. Will Seek to Regain Control of City Council

Herrin, Ill., April 17—(AP)—The Ku Klux Klan, which lost control of the Herrin government a year ago, will attempt to regain it next Tuesday at the city election. One alderman is to be elected in each of the four wards. Mayor Marshall McCormack holds over another year as do four of the eight aldermen.

Since the killing last Tuesday of Alderman Mack Sizemore, Klansmen, the city council is divided three klansmen and four anti-klansmen. With Sizemore the two factions were equally represented. Mayor McCormack, former Klansman, who had been elected on a non-partisan ticket, has thrown his support to the anti-klansmen, giving them control.

The two tickets are the Conservative (Klan) and the Citizens (anti-Klan). In the fourth ward the race for alderman is between John Ford, former chief and reputed Cyclops of the Herrin Klan, who is running on the conservative ticket and Dr. Carl Baker, prominent physician on the citizens ticket. Ford's brother, Harold, was killed in last Tuesday's affair at the fourth ward polling place at the Masonic Hall and John Ford, himself, was a target for the bullets of the anti-Klan attackers.

Company K of Cairo on guard here since Tuesday's rioting which resulted in death of six men, left today for their homes. The headquarters company of Carbondale, comprising 35 men and officers, remained. Lieut. Col. Robert W. Davis continued in command.

The inquest convened this morning at the Jenkins undertaking establishment where the bodies of the three slain Klansmen had been cared for. The coroner's jury has had a hard time getting a place to finish the inquiry started yesterday. The city hall was unavailable because of a court session. The jury moved to the Masonic Hall where the shooting occurred, but were forced to leave because of objections to holding the inquiry there. The jurors then moved across the street to the Baptist church and when adjournment came were informed the church would be no longer available.

A fourth move was made to a vacant room in the Fowler building and the inquest finally got under way at 11 a. m. with all newspapermen and the public barred. Witnesses called this morning refused to testify if newspapermen were present.

When it was suggested that, no names be used by the papers, but merely the witnesses' versions of the shooting, it was thought for a time this would be done, but the jury and officials conducting the inquiry finally decided it was better to make the hearing private.

Crack flyers of the army air service, in addition to Col. William Mitchell, who have resigned within the past few months, include:

Lieutenant John Macready, holder of the American altitude record.

Lieutenant H. R. Harris, one of the most expert test pilots in the world, and an authority on parachutes. He tried out the giant Barling bomber. Many of the army's world records were made by him.

Lieutenant George E. Hodge, an administrative expert, a notable flyer and former aide at the White House.

Lieutenant Parker Van Zandt, a pilot, a Ph. D. from the University of California, and an international expert on airplane design.

Lieutenant Frank W. Seifert, one of the army's best pilots, who took part in the re-fueling experiments on the west coast.

Lieutenant Charles N. Monroth, a technical expert with the engineering division at McCook Field.

Lieutenants Jack Harding Jr., Leigh Wade and H. H. Ogden, flyers who made the world flight.

Going farther back in army records, conspicuous flyers who have been lost to the service include Major R. W. Schroeder, former holder of the altitude record; Major William G. Schaeffer and Captain Ray Brooks, aces of war days, and Captain Belvin W. Maynard, the famous "flying parson," who resigned shortly before he was killed. Lieutenant C. C. Moseley, the first winner of the Pulitzer cup, is on a year's leave and expected to resign at its close. Other illustrious aviators are mentioned in reports of intended resignations.

He was held in default of $1,000 bond in the Pulaski County Jail at Mound City, for action of the grand jury.

ACES OF UNITED STATES AERIAL
SERVICE QUITNine of Crack Flyers of Army Have Resigned
Their Posts

BY GEORGE BRITT
NEA Service Writer

Washington, April 17—The American army is losing its crack flyers! The resignation of Lieutenant John Macready, who has gone farther towards the sky's ceiling than any other man in America, is only the latest and most notable loss to the service. For the war time aces and the holders of peace time records are resigning from the air service in appalling numbers.

Of the six heroes of the round-the-world flight, only three remain in uniform. Within the past few months nearly a dozen famous flyers have quit. For the year 1925 the resignations in the air service amounted to 2.2 per cent, or nearly double the rate of 1.3 per cent in the infantry.

Each of these flyers who leaves represents a loss to the government at actual replacement cost, of from $100,000 to $1,000,000.

Morale Shattered
Why are they leaving? The answer seems to be that morale has been shattered and hope destroyed by conditions in the service.

Some are disgruntled over the Mitchell case, but the discontent is more direct and personal. This answer comes not only from avowed aviators, of the administration but from the flyers themselves.

"If conditions were right, most of them would stay enthusiastically, regardless of low army pay and commercial opportunities outside," says Representative Frank R. Reid, who was attorney for Colonel William Mitchell at his court martial.

Representative F. H. LaGuardia, himself a flying major on the Italian front, agrees with him.

"Aviators are different from other men," he says. "They are different in nerves and temperament, and it is a mistake to try to force them into the same mold. In flying they must keep track of three dimensions at once, while most of us have a hard time holding our heads in two. Yet the present system treats all officers alike. It is an impossible attempt."

Alexander M. Fisher, chief investigator for the Lampert committee, which a year ago made an exhaustive study of the air service, says:

"Slow promotion is one great trouble."

"The air service is on the same list with the artillery, the infantry, the quartermaster corps and all the other branches."

"The flyer must wait in line for his turn, and when a flyer is killed the vacancy he creates gives an advancement to all those of every branch behind him."

"The flyer's life expectancy on an insurance rating is only 12 years. The average first lieutenant pilot will be dead twice before he gets to be a captain under the present system. The air service repeatedly has recommended a separate promotion list for its officers, but it gets nowhere."

$100,000 Apiece
"Not only because of his risks but because of what he represents in personality, training and investment by the government, the air pilot has a right to feel entitled to consideration. It costs at least $100,000 or more to train a pilot. This represents upkeep of fields and instruction staff, salary, wear on material and smashed up planes."

"The stars in the service, Captain Lowell Smith of the world flight, for instance, easily represent an investment of more than $1,000,000. It would take about that much, in addition to time and risk, to train another to take his place."

"One critic of Colonel Mitchell said he was a good wartime soldier but a poor one for peacetime. Yet what the army must have primarily is soldiers for wartime."

"There is, furthermore, a feeling that the organization is against the flyers. Non-flying officers control the policy of the air service. Legislation is academic not practical. The flyers consider it hopeless. They believe the equipment is not as good as can be bought or built, and that the possibilities are not being half realized. They see they can be nothing but an auxiliary service. Therefore they lose interest."

MRS. BRIDGET C.
DREW DEAD, WAS
100 YEARS OLDInfirmities of Years
Cause Death of Dixon
Centenarian

Mrs. Bridget Costello Drew, Dixon centenarian, died at the home of her son, John P. Drew, former Palmyra supervisor and prominent Lee county farmer, at about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, death being due to the infirmities of her age. Funeral services will be held at the home, 1025 Highland avenue, at 9 o'clock Monday morning and at St. Patrick's Catholic church at 9:30 o'clock, with burial at Oakwood.

Mrs. Drew was born in County Galway, Ireland, in 1826, but the great part of her life was spent in this country, and for many years she was a resident of Palmyra township. She was married to Jeremiah Drew in 1856, and three children were born to the union. A daughter, Mary, a son, James, and her husband preceded her in death, her only surviving relatives being her son John, with whom she made her home, five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Drew was a remarkable woman throughout her long life, and especially in her declining years, when her bodily strength began to decline, did she demonstrate the unusual characteristics which made her beloved by all who knew her. She retained a keen interest in her family and friends and throughout her last years exhibited great consideration for all about her.

"What Price Glory"
Will be Great Act in Legion's Show

"What Price Glory, Jr.," is perhaps one of the most unique acts on the program of the American Legion vaudeville show to be given Monday evening, April 26.

The Morris Gest of Dixon, Sherwood Dixon, has spared neither time, money nor effort in making this the greatest laugh producing comedy of his entire career. The sketch is based on "What Price Glory," a dramatic triumph of the past two years. Its action takes place in war devastated France. By dramatic critics the original play was hailed as the greatest showing of the American soldier as he really was.

The rough, hard boiled Captain Flag and the equally calloused Sergeant Quist are characters which will long live in the memory of American playgoers. The Dixon version of this plot will be a satire. A wealth of talent has been gathered by the producer to portray the characters, not as they were but as they might have been. The result is a series of laugh producing events you will long remember.

The committee announces that the reserve seat sale will open Monday, April 19. The entire first floor will be reserved. Tickets will be on sale at the box office of the Dixon Theater, where the show will be staged.

Three-In-Laws Cause No Trouble in Home
Chicago, April 17—(AP)—Three in-laws in their home have caused no domestic rift between Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kleiber, married nine years ago when Mrs. Kleiber was 14, but she has her problem in endeavoring to keep the martial ties of her father and mother in order.

To this end, Mrs. Kleiber yesterday appealed to the domestic court's social service bureau to "give a little assistance in talking to her father."

"It is all nonsense about young people not being able to get along because some in-law has to live in their home," Mrs. Kleiber declared.

"Do you and your husband get along?" she was asked.

"Oh, perfectly," she answered. "You see when one of us is out of sorts the other keeps perfectly quiet. That way there can't be any quarrel. We haven't ever had one. I wish mother and dad could get along as well."

Mrs. Kleiber's father is the third in-law. Two small sons compose the rest of the family.

ATTACK WAS BEGUN HERE
BY LAWYERSFirst Time in History of Circuit All Judges
Hear Suit

The Illinois primary law held to be full of holes this morning when Attorney G. C. Dixon opened his arguments before the three judges of this district at the court house in the suit brought by J. McAlpine seeking an injunction restraining County Treasurer Charles H. Eastman and County Clerk Fred G. Dimick from paying judges of election for their duties performed at last Tuesday's primary, on the grounds that the division of the first and second precincts was not in accordance with the law.

It marked the first time in the history of the Lee county circuit court that three judges occupied the bench at the same time. The three circuit judges, William J. Emerson of Oregon, Harry Edwards of Dixon and Harry L. Heer of Galena, took their seats a few minutes after 10 o'clock and Attorney Dixon opened his argument. State's Attorney Mark C. Keller was present in court, appearing for the defendants.

"Tax Payers' Suit"
Attorney Dixon in opening his argument, stated that the action brought was a taxpayers' suit brought against the County Treasurer and County Clerk. He briefly reviewed the primary election laws operative in Illinois since 1915 and referred to various precedents which he felt were unconstitutional. Of five suits four were held invalid, he stated to the courts.

He stated that the action of the Lee County board of supervisors in changing the county from 20 polling places to 35 which division existed until last year when the second precinct boundary lines in Dixon were changed. He then took up the voting powers of the precinct committee of the county and in this connection cited many precedents. He stated that at the present time there was no method of ascertaining the voting power of the precinct committee from the second precinct.

Calls Outlets Affected
"This situation not only exists in Lee county, but throughout the state," Attorney Dixon stated to the courts. "I have found the same conditions in Springfield, Peoria and Rockford." With this statement, he produced maps showing the Springfield city precincts which have recently been changed and the split creating approximately 30 new precincts.

He stated that there was little law and few authorities on the proposition and added that the matter must be decided on the principles of constitutional law and the meaning of the language that all elections shall be "free and equal."

Assailed Cook Co.
The prosecution deliberated for several minutes on the conditions existing in the second precinct in Dixon and assailed the method now in use in the election of judges in Cook county. He concluded at the noon hour by stating that the present primary law was unjust and unconstitutional and that a marked discrimination exists.

Before closing for the lunch hour Attorney Dixon stated that prior to 1905, he was satisfied with the officials of the state as to their honesty, integrity and the economic manner in which he affairs were conducted, but that since that time, conditions could have been no worse than they were. There were no election laws at all. By agreement, the argument was recessed until 1:30 this afternoon.

Weekly Grain Review

Chicago, April 17.—(AP)—It has been a red letter week for higher prices on grain, especially wheat. Europe bought North American wheat on a big scale abandoning their recent hand to mouth method and admitting that estimated world requirements are a good deal in excess of probable supplies.

Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning showed 3c to 7.5c advance, corn 2.18c to 2.5c up, oats 1.4c to 3c higher and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Right about face change of policy.

on the part of the European wheat trade began to manifest itself after Argentine Government figures were out showing curtailment of the wheat yield there had not been exaggerated. Official figures showed also that the condition of U. S. winter wheat is somewhat below what the majority of traders had supposed.

Speculators short of wheat for delivery on May contracts here in the effort to avoid a possible squeeze in prices, excitedly bid up the market five cents a bushel in a single day. Subsequently immense profit taking sales and talk of shipments of wheat to Chicago from the northwest counted as something of an offset. Corn and oats were influenced principally by the action of wheat. Washington advices of probable assistance to producers were also regarded in some quarters as a stimulating factor. Besides new corn planting is late in many sections.

Provisions were steadied by disclosure of smaller accumulations of lard here than had generally been assumed was the case.

Butter Market

Chicago, April 17.—(AP)—The butter markets during the week brought a continuation of the weakness and declining prices which were so prevalent during the previous week. The chief difference between the two weeks was that the lower tendency was more general during the latter week.

Supplies of all grades of butter were ample to meet the exceptionally light demands with stocks of fancy butter exceptionally heavy.

During the week under review, the receipts at the four markets have been exceeding those of last year in indicating that production is still increasing.

Singing Great Aid in Soothing Minds of Wards of State

Springfield, Ill., April 17.—(AP)—Relating the instance of David soothing the Spirit of King Saul with harp music, Marie Lounsbury Wells assistant state superintendent of charity writing in the April number of the Welfare Magazine, said this was the earliest known record of music-therapy.

Describing the use of community singing in state institutions for mental diseases Mrs. Wells said that "intensive research has revealed the fact that music actuates the capacity for responding to outer stimulants of thought and action and that the subtlest, most unconscious inculcation of the best principles of life are definitely affected by musical vibration."

"Music is of far greater importance," she said, "in the care and education of the unfortunate population of public institutions than has heretofore been realized."

"In view of the effect of music on state wards, it becomes obvious that a great knowledge of the relations of music to conduct is essential to the efficient administration of our corrective institutions. Greater knowledge of the effects of music on those suffering with mental disorders and on the definitely insane would result in benefit to them. Music can render a

As between two investments, both equally safe, every man is glad to place his money where it does business and his town the most good.

Money invested with our institution is loaned out for home ownership. This makes the community more prosperous and develops better citizens.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Let H'r Hang!

Once upon a time when knighthood was in flower, the Queen of Spain fell from her horse and hung by one foot in the stirrup, with her prancing steed ready to bolt for the open spaces any moment. And there she had to hang, in the presence of her entire retinue, because the job of assisting the queen on or off her horse was that of the Grand Equerry, and he was away in the fields. But an innocent yokel, who would not the divinity that doth hedge a queen, ran to the assistance of the lady. For his temerity in breaking the laws of court he was banished.

And Even Today!

Superior or older persons are known to in the introduction, younger and less noted persons being introduced to the celebrity, with the celebrity's name spoken first and permission for introduction asked, thus, "Governor Fussy may I present Mr. Coward?" The celebrity, however, must be mighty much of a mogul before a woman is presented to him rather than he to her!

Rings Then and Now!

On olden times a betrothed couple broke pieces of raw gold or silver, each keeping half, as symbol of their troth. This year's wedding rings feature platinum circles set with square-cut diamonds. Engagement rings continue to use platinum, and the stones are set high.

Hat Styles

A famous architect once wrote a ponderous tome upon the delation of a nation's hats and a nation's homes. He pointed out that the very word "hut" which they first resembled. The Hawaiian hat is like Hawaii's grass huts. The turbans of Eastern church dignitaries like the mosque domes of the east.

And by the same token, the compact, tiny, close-fitting little turbans of America, 1926, are modeled after the compact efficiency suits with every job and title of space considered and conserved!

You MUST Read It!

If you're a parent, who do you know about your own child? I am about to quote from a book which is not on the spring book list. Not a new book but one of the very best books in years—Christopher Morley's "Thunder on the Left."

This book abounds with the usual parent who, when confronted by his child's questing for knowledge, says, "George is the husband of the female parent, who is prone to chant the bean and keep still ukase."

"One evening he passed gently by the children's door about midnight and heard a quiet little cough. Janet was awake. That small sound suddenly, appallingly, reminded him that these poor creatures too were human. She must be lying there, thinking, 'What does a child think, alone at night? He went in, in the darkness, put his arms round the surprised child, and whispered encouragements to her.'"

Your Month?

April's flower is the daisy. It signifies innocence. April's gem is the diamond. It signifies another good man gone wrong, and the luck one clever girl has had—mebbe!

W. H. M. S. Held
April Meeting

The Womens Home and Foreign Missionary Society of Bethel United Evangelical church held their April meeting Thursday afternoon at the church. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, "Rescue The Perishing." Miss Carrie Smith presented the scripture followed by prayer by several members. Another hymn, "Jesus Calls Us," was sung after which Mrs. Ella Norberg gave a reading, "The Lawd He Had a Job."

Miss Minnie Zigler favored us with a very pleasing vocal solo, "Must I Go and Empty Handed." Mrs. C. E. Hill gave an article on 14 points or ways of killing a church.

A leaflet entitled, "Peace Where There Is No Peace," was read by Mrs. Rogers.

Mrs. John O. Nelson developed the topic, Life above the Border. This was the first chapter in our new text book on Mexico and proved very interesting.

The usual business of the society was taken up and our annual Self Denial offering lifted. About $18 was brought in with more to follow. Meeting closed by repeating the Lord's prayer.

Women From Ten Nations Marched

Chicago, April 17—(AP)—Women from ten nations marched through the gates of the exposition today in formal inauguration of the Women's World's Fair. Each nation's representatives are dressed in the costumes of their native land, and a woman's hand swelled with the national anthems as the women stood at attention before a reviewing stand which contained consuls of the participating nations, city officials and women executives of the fair.

The tricks of a hundred and fifty trades and professions in which women have distinguished themselves are revealed in 230 displays at the pageant of feminine achievement. Nations represented include France, Iceland, Norway, Lithuania, Poland, Hungary, Denmark, China and Great Britain, and all but the latter two have displays.

The fair, which began today, was conceived a year ago by Miss Helen Bennett of Chicago who with Mrs. Medill McCormick organized the first exposition in 1925. It will continue for a week with daily programs representing every phase of woman's achievement.

It's Better to Greet Old Age with a Smile than with an Outstretched Palm.

SIXTY-FIVE—with time for recreation. He does not worry about living—just LIVES without worrying. He has time to smile back upon the years that are gone and to go on smiling through the years that are to come.

It's GOOD to live at sixty-five when you can SMILE with the knowledge that a Provident Mutual Life insurance income makes smiling easy.

THE KANSAS BROOK—

The voice of the brook freed from the cloying masses of snow and ice rings with the pent-up joy of a little one released from school. Over the gray rocks it leaps, its crystal sprays catching the sun and tossing its rays aside in a vast hurry to be gone. It is as if it remembers its countless friends of the field and meadow, friends that have partaken year after year of its unstinted benefaction, friends that have drunk at its kindly fountain and been refreshed.

The searching roots of the tall trees, that are busy in their hidden laboratories preparing for the bannered pageant of springtime, are expectant of the revivifying currents of the faithful brook. The wild plant life upon its ferny banks will drink of its singing waters and unfurl brilliant leaves and shy blossoms to nod their thanks and exhalate fragrance. And not alone the intimate dwellers on its marge welcome its full-brimmed tide; like a true dispenser of good it sends its eager branches hither and thither beneath the waking fields, secretly blessing this thicket and that growth. The maple that watches its stark reflection in the rippling surface of the stream dons its rosyate halo of promise, soon to spread its leaves like a benediction for the feathered voyagers from the south. The amethystine atmosphere lingers where the grateful waters of the brook hasten over the tawny sand. Soon the lark and thrush and redbird will take up their wonted tenancy by the brookside, there to have their far-flown wings in its sun-bathed tide.

Many moods has the brook, each of them equally fascinating. At times it murmurs to itself a gentle chant, other times it laughs aloud and romps in great good humor; again it carols like a happy girl, and yet again it seems to pause reflectively as though perhaps recalling the shadowy cleft of the granite mountain side where spruce and hemlock overhang its icy source. At night, when the farmhouse is silent and the busy world is hushed, the cheerful, melodious sound of its tiny waterfall reaches one with soothing reassurance. Unspent, unweary, and untroubled the little brook silvers the hem of springtime and sustains its part in the hallelujah chorus of the great out of doors.

PROVOKED TO RHYME—

The snow, the snow, the beautiful snow,
Had no place to go, but Dixon—
And it drove away from the stores today
Trade for which the merchants were fixin'.

The snow, the snow, the beautiful snow
Came down in great gobs, in Dixon—
And it made us feel sad, instead of glad
Because it snowed like-blixen.

However, we'll try not to feel blue
We'll pretend all is rosy—
And inside where it's cosy,
You'd never know that it "snows."

BALDWIN AUXILIARY TO SERVE SUPPER TUESDAY EVENING

HE DID NOT TAKE IT AND WOULD NOT PAY FOR IT—

Once an old darkey visited a doctor and was given definite instruction as to what he should do. Shaking his head he started to leave the office, when the doctor said:
"Here, Rastus, you forgot to pay me."
"Pay yo for what, boss?"
"For my advice," replied the doctor.
"Naw, suh; naw, suh; I ain't gwine to take it," and he shuffled out.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Orange juice, cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Cream of spinach soup, croutons, hot cheese sandwiches, upside-down cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Veal loaf, creamed potatoes, dandelion greens, maple custard, rye rolls, milk, coffee.

Dandelion greens must be very carefully cleaned. Cook uncovered in boiling water until tender and then season with butter, lemon juice, salt and pepper. They are often served with a hot vinegar sauce and garnished with hard cooked eggs. However lemon juice and butter are more desirable than the vinegar sauce.

Upside-down cake is quite unusual and quite good.

Up-Side-Down Cake.

Two tablespoons butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup canned cherries, 4 tablespoons broken walnut meats, 2 eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 cup water, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup whipping cream.

Melt butter in iron frying pan. Add brown sugar, making a smooth layer. Cover evenly with canned cherries and sprinkle cherries with nuts. Pour over the following batter: Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored, beating in sugar gradually. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and stir into first mixture. Add water and then vanilla and when mixture is smooth fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Bake forty minutes in a moderate oven with the most heat on the bottom. The brown sugar must melt and form a syrup. Turn cake out, up side down and cover with cream whipped and sweetened. Any kind of fruit can be used as preferred.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

Throughout the Philippine Islands on Washington's birthday anniversary there were Filipinos praying for independence. It is presumed that this date was selected for a demonstration because Washington was a figure in obtaining independence of the American colonies.

Political leaders in the islands have placed a wrong interpretation upon the purposes of the United States to grant independence "whenever they are ready and prepared for self-government."

The United States as a whole has had no intention of turning over this group of islands to the kind of government that Filipino politicians are inclined to give them. They have had opportunity to show the height of their ideals and it has been necessary to draw the rein upon them.

The expression, "whenever they are ready," does not mean whenever a group of political leaders are smart enough to assert themselves and plunder the people. That William J. Bryan is responsible to a great degree for the mental attitude of the Filipino may be suspected. The islands were not seized as prizes of war by the United States, but payment of $20,000,000 was made to Spain as a result of after-war negotiations. Mr. Bryan was a candidate for the presidency a second time when these matters were to the front, and he emphasized the theory that government should be only by the consent of the governed. Acquiring of these islands and Porto Rico was declared to be an act of imperialism. He was committed to the policy of turning them loose.

There was enough of this talk as a campaign issue to inspire hope in the island politicians and especially did they expect something from the Wilson administration, because Mr. Bryan had dominated the democratic party so completely that he was able to make Filipino independence one of the principles of that organization.

The Wilson administration would not go so far as to grant independence, but it liberalized the government to a degree sufficient to allow a demonstration of what would happen if self-government were attempted.

It was shown that a strong hand yet is needed for guidance and protection of the average Filipino. The second generation has come to manhood since the change in allegiance. They have had the advantage of better schools. They have been brought one milestone nearer ability for self-government. They have obtained enough knowledge to see for themselves what would be the result of Filipino independence.

President Harding appointed a commission to ascertain conditions in the islands. It reported that the great majority of the natives prayed for continued protection of the United States, because of fear of exploitation if those seeking independence should gain control of the government.

The American colonies are not comparable to the Filipinos in the matter of ability for self-government. Hundreds of years of civilization and education had preceded them and had given them birth.

REGISTRATION OF ALIENS.

Secretary Davis of the department of labor has devoted much time and effort to the question of immigration and the laws we have today on that subject substantially are of his design. One thing he has proposed earnestly is registration of aliens. This he has not yet been able to accomplish.

Activity in Chicago directed toward deportation of undesirable aliens should go a long way toward aiding him in winning his point. Although there is some opposition to the surveillance such a measure implies, it has not appeared that congress is out of sympathy with it. Other matters of great importance to the nation have come ahead of it in congressional halls.

Natives of other countries who come to the United States for good purposes need not be alarmed concerning such legislation. There has been some reaction against government espionage and against paternalism, but this is an intricate problem which can be handled only by the government. Immigration in controlled wholly by federal laws. It is not a matter for the state to handle.

The state must convict its criminal before it can dispose of him. The federal government can keep under surveillance undesirable aliens by a system of registration and may dispose of them in such suitable manner as it decides upon.

As ye sow, so shall ye have to keep on working with it if you don't want to reap weeds.

Never be too pleasant at breakfast. It makes you eat so much you feel badly the rest of the day.

Do not be alarmed too easily after washing your ears. All noises naturally sound greater then.

Among the strange things in this life are bald barbers, skinny cooks and lazy married men.

A gentleman should always precede his lady friend through the windshield.

To remove dandruff send your coat to the cleaner.

"Where did they go? I'd like to know," said Nancy.

Gazookumses are something like goblins only they usually go about in threes.

Besides their eyes are pink and their ears are sharper. And I have heard it said that their little toes are made of solid silver. But of course one can't be sure as they never take their shoes off.

There sat three of them, now, in the crow's nest in the old dead tree, stuffing themselves with lolly-pops and chocolate-buds and bonbons and throwing the papers and sticks overboard, you might say.

"That was the way Mister Tingaling and the Twins found out that they were there."

"We'll get you!" shouted the fat little fairyman. "Give back that rent money you stole from the owl. Give it back or we'll come up and get you."

The three little Gazookumses looked over the edge of the nest, their sharp noses sticking out like bird bills.

"We don't care! Come on!" they said. "The money's all spent and the candy's all gone. Come and get us if you can."

Mister Tingaling was getting pretty mad about everything by this time, so he shouted, "Look out then, we're coming up this very minute." And calling to Nancy and Nick to follow him, he started to climb up the tree as fast as he could go.

He didn't take the pocket-book along because he couldn't go so fast with it. And the Twins didn't take the rent-book and pencil along because they couldn't go quite so fast, either. All three of those precious things lay on the ground at the foot of the tree.

At last they reached the big bare branch that held up the crow's nest. And along it they all ran to catch the money. But the three noses were no longer to be seen. And upon reaching the nest and peering over the edge, no Gazookumses were to be seen, either. They had disappeared, pink eyes, silver toes and all.

"Oh, sugar!" cried poor Mister Tingaling, stamping his foot so hard he almost snapped off the old dead branch.

"Where did they go? I'd like to know," said Nancy.

"Don't ask me," said Mister Tingaling. "They must have wings as well as silver toes, for they never climbed down. I'm sure."

Suddenly they heard some one say, "Goooh! Eeeeee! A whole dollar and a quarter in fairy money, and a nice big book with a lot of names in it and a big pencil with a nice point! And a pocket-book, too! A present for each of us and enough money to buy out the whole candy-store besides! Oh, thank you, sir! We're sorry we threw lolly-pop sticks and silver-paper wads at you. We like your friends, too, even if they haven't got pink eyes. Goodbye!"

At this Mister Tingaling fainted. Yes he did, indeed—he fainted dead from the top of the old dead tree, the whole way down to the ground. But fortunately he fell into a bed of soft moss, and when the Twins reached him he had quite come to.

"Oh!" he gasped. "Oh! Oh! Oh! All is lost! The rent money and everything. Oh, those dreadful Gazookumses! They are worse than Snitcher Snatch ever thought of being. Have they gone?"

"Yes," said Nick. "And they didn't even leave a footprint behind them."

"They wouldn't," groaned poor Mister Tingaling.

A STORY OF

A GIRL OF TODAY

GIRL TO GIRL.

"I'll be awfully glad to have you with me, Mamie," I said, "for I am rather excited over my eventful evening and I don't think I'll sleep much either. We'll talk it all out and get it all out of our systems, my dear."

"First and foremost," I said as we were undressing for bed, "why did you not tell me there was a son in the family that owns the Beaux Arts restaurant?"

"Because I didn't know there was one," answered Mamie in a surprised tone.

"Well, there is, and his name is Jerry Hathaway. He doesn't care for restaurants and the old man is sore about it, sore probably doesn't get around to the eat shop very often."

"How did you find this out, Julie?"

"Say, Mamie, please don't call me Julie any more. My name is Julie Dean instead of Julie Kean as that French waiter got it the first night and I let it go as I thought if the episode got in the papers, Dad would never connect the name of Julie Kean with me and he would not say that his prophecy had come true."

"From now on, however, I'm going to be Julie Dean to my acquaintances and employers and Judy to my friends."

"For the first time that night Mamie smiled."

"I might have known, Judy, that you could not have had a French name like Julie. You're too independent and aggressive. Julie always sounds like a clinging vine to me."

"I know I've been awfully selfish to talk to you all the evening about my affairs. Now you can tell me all about what happened to you after you left the restaurant with that nice Jimmie Costello, as you call him and I'll listen."

"Well, Jimmie and I walked miles before we came across the fact that I was starving and we were looking for food, we had so much to say about our old home town. At last just as we were going into a very modest place, for Jimmie was developing a very black eye, some man, a very good looking man, stalked up on us. He seemed delighted to see Jimmie, who introduced him to me as Jerry Hathaway. He had just come from the Beaux Arts and had heard of the fracas. He was more than delighted that Jimmie had taken a fall out of Horton.

"In course of the explanation and conversation, I was mentioned as being the cause of it all and my story had to be told."

MONDAY: How It Happened.

THE VERY IDEA

by Hal Cochran

AT EASE

When the day comes along when you're free for a spell, with nothing to worry, or fret you, 'tis well if you turn to the highway that's shy of all care and seek the best solace in free open air.

The mind you've been using on work needs a rest, and lucky the man, who with loafing time blest, can turn to the sky and the road and the trees, and feel that he really is resting at ease.

The wear and the tear of the every day grind is not half so bad as you think it, you'll find, if things that your mental capacity rob, can just be forgotten when you're off the job. Be fair with your system and pick out the road that gives you the feeling of shaking the load. Walk out in the open, where spirits can soar, I guess that's what nature was meant to be for.

When you're traveling through a one-way street, there's only one way to do it—er get pinched.

When a kid sneezes in Germany, rather says "gesundheit!" while in America—"You come right in 'th' house and take off those wet shoes."

Everybody else has turned to automobiles, but the telephone girl sticks to the old plug.

He had a real lumbago walk.

Yet health was quite 'n trim.

He walked that way to fit the shirts.

His wifey made for him.

When a fellow promises a girl he'll be "faithful to the last," she immediately wants to know who the others were.

Advice to mothers: Don't let F make you "just sick" if your young son has sneaked out behind the garage to smoke cornsilk. Give him dad's old pipe. If someone has got to be sick it might just as well be the boy.

A word to the wise is unnecessary.

FABLES IN FACT

ONCE THERE WAS A SWEET OLD LADY WHO STUCK TO OLD FASHIONED IDEAS. PERIOD. IN FACT SHE EVEN WORE LUFFES OVER HER KARS. PERIOD. ONE DAY WHEN THEY WERE SUDDEENLY REMOVED EVERYBODY WONDERED WHY COMMA AND THE TRUTHFUL OLD LADY EXPLAINED THAT THEY GOT IN THE WAY OF THE TELEPHONE RECEIVER COMMA AND FOR TWO DAYS STRAIGHT SHE HAD MISSED HALF THE GOSSIP THAT WENT OVER THE WIRES PERIOD.

PAPERING

The wall paper man's been ahangin' around, an' changin' the looks of the place. A swish and a swish in his musical sound, and a paste brush is settin' the pace.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHERNS

He's littered the dining room, kitchen and hall, but that's part of his business, I guess. The paper scraps linger wherever they fall, and add to the terrible mess.

When father comes home—say, it isn't so nice. He just has to climb big way through. A place to sit down? Well, he has to look twice. There's nothing in comfort, to do.

And mother—she's makin' the best of the scene. She knew that it had to be done, if ever the household would really be clean. She's glad that the task is begun.

The only real thrill that the papering brings is one that the little kids get. They're messin' around in the paper man's things, and oh, do they like it! You bet!

Any girl can keep her complexion in the pink of condition as long as the drug stores stay open.

It depends on how many children a man has, how many reasons there are why he simply can't work at home.

Maybe the answer to the well-known quiz, "Why all the rush," is the gold that has been discovered in Panama and California.

Why is it, that when hubby says "That cooling meals is play, He a ways, when his wife is gone, Will eat at a cafe?"

Some kids will get sunburned for swimming this summer—and some will get tanned.

Men don't hide behind their wives' skirts any more. Try and do it!

People understand why they should carry an umbrella, although it's over their heads.

A Decisively New Order of Beauty

EXECUTED by Fisher, the bodies of the new Pontiac Six mark a unique development in the field of low-priced sixes. Contrasted with the creations hitherto available, they establish a decisively new order of beauty.

Until now, no six-cylinder closed car costing less than $925 offered the superlative craftsmanship that the Fisher emblem denotes. And in these new Pontiac-Fisher bodies have been achieved such richness of Duco finish, such beauty of line and color as to literally explode the theory that a low-priced six-cylinder car has to present a commonplace appearance.

WEATHER CAUSED POSTPONEMENT OF BIG KITE CONTEST

Will be Held at 4:30 Monday Afternoon at the Athletic Field

Because of the weather today, the Y. M. C. A. big kite contest, planned for today, has been postponed until 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, when it will be staged at the north side Athletic Field. As has been stated the contest has gone far beyond the expectations of the Boys' Department of the local "Y" and 86 boys have now signed up and will enter. The YMCA is furnishing material to the boys free of charge and the judging will be in the hands of the Kiwanis Club which awards points on the following items:

1. Workmanship. (Neatness, appearance, etc.)
2. Design or shape. (Originality, beauty, color, decoration, etc.)
3. Flying quality (steadiness in air, ease of rising, etc.)
4. Type of kite:
 - Tall kite plain (2 to 4 points)
 - Tall kite fancy (3 to 6 points)
 - Tailless kite (4 to 8 points)
 - Box kites (5 to 10 points)
 - Special types (1 to 10 points)
5. Size, extra points up to 10 given for extra large or small kite. Size is measured by length, plus width, plus depth.
6. Should the judges be unable to make a decision on the above points, the contest will further include (1) races (e. g., letting out 200 yards of string), (2) Pulling quality (tested by spring scale or by lifting weights).

The contest has proved so popular that the "Y" staff has decided to give three prizes. The first prize will be six months' free membership in the YMCA, second prize, three months' free membership and third prize, one month's membership in the YMCA.

VOLLEY BALL TEAM READY

The Dixon volley ball team has completed arrangements for its trip to Rockford to attend the District Volley Ball Tournament. E. O. Miller, manager of the team and J. N. Weiss, captain, will accompany the team. They are scheduled to play their first game at 2 o'clock.

Other teams to be present are Aurora, Elgin, Sterling, Freeport, Belvidere and Rockford. The winner of this tournament will play in the State Tournament to be held in Moline.

TOASTMASTERS STAGE CONTEST

The attendance contest which was started Thursday in the Toastmasters Club, is away with a flying start. Colonel Brunnell made a fiery address in favor of his side, which he has called the Kan't Wollupuses. He has lined up for his Captains, C. A. Buchner, A. L. Lang, Dr. A. M. McNichol, C. G. Shepherd and W. H. Spindler. Each of these Captains have their teams who have pledged their support by regular attendance for the next five weeks. Opposing Colonel Brunnell is Colonel Vogel, who, with his quiet, reassuring manner, expressed the confidence of his side of winning. Assisting him are Captains L. R. Clingman, B. O. Cully, B. J. Frazier, E. O. Miller, L. H. Tibbets and R. C. Webb. Last night's attendance gave Colonel Vogel a lead of five points over Col. Brunnell but it is expected that this shortage will be made up at next week's meeting.

Short talks were given during the program by T. W. Clayton, on "City Engineering," and V. A. Vogel on "The Manufacture of Chocolates." The lesson in Parliamentary Practice was taken by R. Kietzman and B. O. Cully, but owing to the shortness of the time, the lesson was not completed and the same two members will have charge next week. Toastmaster C. C. Hintz was present and took a photograph of the club to be sent to the National YMCA Magazine, which has written, asking for it.

At the H-Y Club Thursday noon,

PITCHERS SHINE

IN HARD FIGHTS

OF BIG LEAGUERS

Some Great Games Were Turned in Friday by Box Stars

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pitchers, old and young, continue to furnish exceptional performances in the major baseball leagues.

Yesterday August Johns of Detroit, a recruit from Fort Worth, held Cleveland to four hits and won his battle, while the veteran Urban Faber limited the St. Louis Browns to five. The White Sox obtained only five off Robertson, Jonnard and Girard, but one of them was a triple by Tom Gulley in the first with the bases full, giving Chicago a winning margin.

Grover Alexander of the Chicago Cubs allowed four safeties against Cincinnati, but lost the verdict as Lucas likewise was stingy and granted only five. Johnson and Sothern of the St. Louis Cardinals held the world champion Pirates to four and won.

In the American League, Washington and Philadelphia engaged in a heated combat which finally brought banishment to Manager Harris of the Senators in the ninth for objecting to decisions. Washington won 4-3 after each squad had registered ten hits.

The New York Yankees captured their first series of the year by downing Boston 3-2, although out-hit. Herb Pennock kept the bingles well scattered.

Cleveland gathered its three runs off Johns in the first inning with hits by Jamieson and Speaker in the first inning and two errors by O'Rourke.

Gulley, a triple in the first gave the White Sox a lead that was too much for the Browns with Faber going well and Chicago won five to one, the third consecutive victory.

The champion Pirates went down again when Sheehan filled the bases in the ninth, hit a batsman and allowed Mueller to single. The score was 3-2 giving the Cardinals a 3 out of 4 decision in the series.

Lucas of the Reds won his own game against Alexander at Cincinnati with a triple in the third from which he scored on a sacrifice fly.

The day saw the Phillies' winning streak broken after three straight, the Braves winning 6-5 with Welch and Burris slugging out three hits apiece. Leach added another homer to his record.

Steady mound work by Jack Scott gave the Giants another victory and the series against Brooklyn.

Sidelights

Tom Gulley, former Little Rock slugger, in winning a place in the hearts of the White Sox fans.

Charley Robertson, former White Sox pitcher, flared his first start with the St. Louis Browns against his former mates, but was wild.

Cincinnati and Chicago set a season record for speed yesterday when they played their game in one hour and 15 minutes.

Cedric Durst, former American Association star, started in right field for the St. Louis Browns and ripped off two hits in four times at bat.

"Bloopers" Out in Force Silent Night

Chicago—(AP)—"Whoop-oop." Such were the sentiments on most seekers after distance with the close of Chicago's last silent period. It was one of the best since last fall. Yet the "whoop" was not entirely one of ecstasy, for the "bloopers" were out in force and part of the "whoop" was attributed to the lack of proper operation of receivers that radiate.

Aside from the wine of interfering sets, which seemed to become less trifling as the night grew on, two other things stepped in to keep the night out of the ideal column. Static was quite pronounced at times, while fading was sharply in evidence. However these "little" worries could easily be forgotten with the stations rolling in practically as good as they are expected to do in the dead of winter.

The reception seems to be satisfactory from all directions except the west, where signals were hard to find. As an example one could slip from C P C P, Montreal, Can., to C Z E, Mexico City with half trying. The eastern limits, of course, were halted by the Atlantic, while to the west little could be found to thrill. The south was as powerful as usual, Texas stations being quite prominent after a lapse during the recent erratic listening periods.

Now that spring is here, according to the calendar, the new set owners may find that there are numerous stations outside Chicago if the reception forecasters keep up his good work, as evidenced last Monday night.

Why Girls Go Back Home

BY CATHARINE BRODY

Copyright 1926 by Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

CHAPTER I

Several things had made Clifford Dudley reluctantly take to the road that hot summer. In those days, whenever you thought of Clifford Dudley, you thought at once of "The Artist," that seductive play of fifteenth century Italian morals or lack of morals, which had won for him his first starring sign on Broadway, and his first big type in the theatrical columns. Even Clifford Dudley, after a year of six nights and two matinees weekly of "The Artist," found it hard to dissociate himself from the part. His manager, a smart, if tactful Irishman, said of him that he walked in his street clothes as if they were the doublet and hose of his role in the theatre. But never to Clifford's face. Mr. Dugan was tactful. To Dudley's face, in the second spring of "The Artist," Mr. Dugan said as follows:

"Now, Cliff, my boy, we'll have to be givin' up the ship here. Which is a good thing, for if you don't go out and show yourself to the sticks soon, my boy, the number of women deserting their husbands to come to New York and see the Great Lover'll be so large that the population of these United States will be set back I don't know how many million. And we can't have that, Cliff, my boy. As patriotic Americans, we gotta guard against that at all costs!"

This, said with Mr. Dugan's yielding Irish smile, which completely belied the round, hard eyes of the tribe of theatrical managers, eyes like two small blue marbles, had its effect on Clifford, especially when backed by further arguments. Did not Clifford want his fame as a Great Lover to penetrate to the farthest reaches to the play, when there was a play. It was known in theatrical parlance as a "good show town."

"Why in the h— did they here?" said Clifford Dudley, the Great Lover, bethinking himself of the sleepy Main Street seen from the train, as the company scuttled out just before theatre time.

He never finished the sentence. For just then a piece of chewing gum, parked in the sweet long ago by one of the high school lassies, fastened itself to the Florentine extremities of "The Artist." He sat down on a property chair, not yet set in its place exactly for the scene, and jerked. But the chewing gum used by high school lassies is noted for its sticking qualities.

With what would have been a yell of wrath anywhere but back stage, the Great Lover sprang from his chair, and hopping on one foot, pounced upon the manager in the wings.

"Scene No. 1," said the manager under his breath.

What the blank, blank, blank, cried "The Artist," working himself up to his most effective pas alone, "do you mean, Williams, by booking me in a hick house that's coated with chewing gum? And you expect me to give my usual performance here, do you? DO YOU? Put on my understudy, if you will, I leave town tonight."

"The Great Dud's having an other tantrum," sighed the old character actor to the grease paint in his dressing room.

"The Kid Himself is cuttin' up rough again," sang Sally Short, "The Artist's" model, to the character woman who was helping her into her draperies.

The company calmly went on dressing Williams the manager,

The artist's tantrum in the wings of these United States? Seeing him, would not the people clamor for him in motion pictures, and, if so, would it not mean the part of "The Artist" in the moving picture version, with emoluments not to be despised?

Besides, there was what might be called a personal reason. There was a little matter, fact of a breach of promise suit against Clifford Dudley by a chorus girl of no importance whatever, whom Clifford had known and wooed and won when he was of not so much importance either. Mr. Dugan, "his boy's" interests closely at heart, had advised him shrewdly:

"If you go and stay away all summer and the case gets put off and put off by your lawyers, this girl being probably out of a job in the summer season, is going to get mighty hard up, and then your lawyer comes along with an offer to settle say for two thou, and this girl is going to accept. That's what they all do. You can get into all the messes you want later on, Cliff, my boy, when you're the cat's pajamas, but at the present moment, take my advice and lay low. You gotta keep the matinee ladies falling for you and you can't do that by getting married or engaged right away, or letting the public know you have a girl at the air. Even a chorus girl, see?"

Clifford saw. And this was why, on the late August evening, he found himself, not at one of the cool Long Island resorts; where the smart semi-society of New York which goes in for well-known actors, had made shift to entertain him last summer.

He found himself, instead, yawning behind the dusty curtain of the musty Winesville Opera House, where church quartettes "entertained" in winter, where high school boys and girls tripped awkwardly in their annual performances of "something from Shakespeare," where one-night stand musical comedies went noisily through their paces, and where many a trained seal and dancing bear had catered to the artistic sensibilities of Winesville. Once Edwin Booth, as the mad Prince, had collected a record audience in Winesville, and ever since Winesville had traditionally gone calmly took out his knife, and, jerking the Great Lover's foot to his knee, neatly sliced off the gum. "Sorry," he said pacifically. "You know these towns. No booze but plenty of gum. If you don't feel like going on, I'll put in D'Alvino. He can't touch you, I think, but the company thinks he's a wow! Houses sold out."

He ambled away. The Great Lover sighed a sigh of relinquishment and his head dropped to his hefty chest, displayed to great advantage by his short Florentine jacket.

"Well, if that's the case," he said sadly, "I must go on in spite of everything. We can't disappoint the public, can we, Williams? We artists!"

"Uh-huh," mumbled Williams. Stepping carefully to avoid possible further deposits of prehensile chewing gum, Clifford went back to his vantage point. He remembered he had been about to look through the peephole and see what the house held.

"Yokels," he muttered under his breath. And true enough, the population of Winesville, dressed for the occasion in its best hats imported by the Ross Department Store from the nearest Paris, which was Pittsburgh, rustling its best summer dresses (not indeed the garb of organdy and calico, but of highly overdecorated silks) with the too tight-fitting suits of its sporting men, did not look very inviting to a pair of eyes unused to the panorama of Times Square and Fifth Avenue.

However, a gleam came into Clifford's eyes. There, in the front row, sat a really pretty girl next to a blond yokel who wore a pair of not too clean white flannel trousers. She sat very next to him indeed. Their shoulders touched. She was deliciously round, with a round, demure face, bobbed and wavy chestnut hair, and eyes of the kind known as melting. At this moment they were melting into the blue eyes of the boy next to her. She had a decided dimple. Clifford saw it when she took a candy with two coy fingers from the box on her lap and set it daintily into the mouth of the blond boy.

"PIED PIPER" TO BE BROADCAST IN EVEREADY HOUR

Unique Feature to be Put on Air Tuesday from New York

New York—The "Pied Piper of Hamelin," classic poem by Browning, is to be presented in opera form over the radio.

The "Eveready Hour" of next Tuesday, April 20, over Station WEA, of New York, and its network of broadcasting stations throughout the East and Middle West, will present a special operatic arrangement of the famous poetic tale, with its own group of artists and musicians. The opera is based on Browning's original poem. The libretto is by Anna J. Reissinger and the music by Joseph W. Ciolek.

The story, it will be remembered, is that of the strange piper who appeared in the little town of Hamelin and undertook a contract to rid the town of the million rats which had begun to make life unbearable for the good townspeople. At the appointed time he appeared in the streets, playing his pipes. Lured from their holes by the strange music, the rats swarmed through the streets following the piper. True to his agreement, he led them all to the brink of the river where they fell into the water and were drowned.

However, when the Pied Piper presented himself before the town fathers to receive payment for a task well performed, there was considerable argument and finally the claim of the piper was rejected. In a vengeful mood, the piper declared that he would make those ungrateful townspeople pay in a much dearer coin.

Accordingly, he went into the streets with his pipes again and with another strangely attractive tune, led all of the children save one little crippled boy who could not follow, out of the town and away to a great mountain cave which closed behind them.

The operatic arrangement differs from Browning's poem only in that it has a happy ending. In this version the little lame boy who could not follow, beseeches the Pied Piper so pitifully to bring back his playmates, that after a time the piper causes the mountain cave to open again and the children are brought (through back home).

The operatic presentation has been arranged especially for the "Eveready Hour."

Hour" by its staff of program directors headed by Paul V. Stacy and Harry Gilbert, musical director. In the cast will be all the old "Eveready Hour" favorites, including Wilfred Glenn, bass; Betsy Ayres, soprano; Charles Harrison and Wesley Howard, tenors; Rose Bryant, contralto; and Jackson Kinsey, baritone. Max Jacob's chamber symphony orchestra will supply the accompaniment and musical background.

OBITUARY

EDWARD T. SMITH

(Contributed)
Few men are remembered with more genuine affection by members of our community than Edward T. Smith who died in Chicago April 9. He was born in Dixon, July 26, 1862 and spent the greater part of his life here. His father was E. C. Smith long known as an educator and for whom one of our schools is named. On August 25, 1880, he married Ada Russ and to them were born four children two of whom are still living, Halbert M. of Chicago and Vera (now Mrs. Will Gooder of Maricopa). During the early years of his married life he was engaged in farming and mercantile business. In 1910 he moved to Chicago where he was warehouse superintendent for the Watson Plummer Shoe Co. and for the rest of his life was engaged in shoe manufacturing. At the time of his death he had been for several years superintendent of the Selz-Schwab Womens' Shoe Company. He was not a scholar nor a man of brilliant achievement. He did, however, by his cheerful, unselfish disposition endear himself to hosts of friends. At his grave were tokens from his employers, from men with whom he had worked shoulder to shoulder in the factory and from those he had known socially. Brought up a Baptist he became later in life a consistent communicant of the Episcopal church and was at one time Superintendent of the Sunday School of St. Luke's, Dixon. As a sturdy American citizen, a sincere Christian, a genial companion and a loyal, unselfish friend, he will be remembered by many for years to come.

BURDETTE P. KENNEDY
Burdette P. Kennedy was born in Moline, Feb. 22, 1923 and died in Dixon April 13, 1926. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan T. Kennedy; a sister, Elizabeth, a brother, Clarence; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kennedy of Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Simpson of Earlville. One brother, Sheridan, preceded him in death.
